

VINYL BANQUET VERY SUCCESSFUL AND ENTERTAINING EVENING

The annual Legion Social Vinyl night held Monday evening was an outstanding success, more than 150 members and their guests being present. The well filled tables artistically decorated with daffodils, jonquils and pussy willows were the work of the ladies. The Silent Toast was followed by Grace given by the Rev. E. H. Brundage, after which the gathering did full justice to the many good things to eat. The Chairman, S. G. Grant, welcoming the guests, spoke of the pleasure it gave the branch to endeavor to make this event bigger and better each year. In fitting and well chosen words, the Rev. T. D. Winter gave the toast to The King. The toast "Our Guests," was humorously proposed by Mayor J. S. Hughes and was responded to in an equally witty manner by S. D. Hughes. The Ladies, afforded W. Gray full play for his powers of oratory, giving a speech where much is due. Mrs. J. A. French responded, brought back to memory the first Vinyl night in Strathmore, and how greatly it pleased the ladies to have so much appreciation shown for their efforts.

The principal guest, Ven. Arch. Deacon Swanson, in an address to this community. He established a close contact between himself and his audience by some very humorous witticisms and stories. His introduction to his address. The speaker said as next Monday the world over, people will be rejoicing in the celebrating the 25th anniversary of the coronation of King George, he felt it would be fitting to take, as his subject. King ship and the origin of the monarchy.

The Archdeacon traced the early history of Britain from its rule under earls to the first king, who was Charles, down through the centuries to the present Sovereign when the king reigns, rather than rules. He pointed out that the Magna Carta was the first written constitution of the people being opposed to the ruling sovereign. The speaker humorously remarked that until the present royal family, the kings had all been of other than English national origin.

Rev. Swanson said, in the early centuries the king had exercised his authority under the church and its a significant truth that where kings are dethroned the dethronement of the church follows. Two of the kings of the British race were strong evidences of the virile character of the British race. The development of Parliamentary government was traced and the speaker said that Parliamentary government is a failure everywhere where it has been tried, where it emerged. The speaker related a striking incident from Strachy's Book, when Gladstone and Queen Victoria were having a quarrel, and the argument became somewhat tense. The Queen drew herself up with all the strength of her character and position and said, "Sir, may I remind you that I am the Queen of England," to which Gladstone replied, "Madam may I remind you that I am the people of England," and the argument ceased. Significant words these in these days of dictatorship.

The lecturer told the story of the man who carried with him a four legged stool, thus signifying the priests, people, lords and crown. All four necessary, not one of them could be dispensed with. The speaker spoke of the Statute of Westminster, its effect on the 7th governing dominions, and the intangible bond which binds these dominions to allegiance to the Motherland and which is revered by outside peoples. He closed his most interesting address by reading extracts from the book written by John Buchan the next day, General of Canada.

The King's Grace
A recent book written by John Buchan, the future Governor General of Canada, has a double value for Canadian readers. It contains the quality of the man who is shortly to be the royal representative in Canada, and it records the reign of King George V from 1910 to 1925. The title is "The King's Grace" and the book is not so much a biography as an interpretation of the Throne. It is a living, vital force, during a period of unprecedented changes.

In his prologue he suggests the trend of thought throughout the preceding chapters. In the last two hundred years, while the Throne has lost its defensible powers, it has gained in significance. It is the apex and centre of national unity, and the

The Technocrats have had another meeting at Carleland when J. M. Newman spoke in the hall on the subject amplifying his previous lecture by slides illustrating the advancement of modern science and the need for a new system to meet the needs of the times. His theory seems to be that the present economic system is cracking and in the course of a year or two will be in such a perilous position that Technocracy can take over er and socialize the whole economic structure. His is a fascinating theory and seems to be gaining much ground south of the International border.

LONG LIVE THE KING

Monday next Britanians in all the far flung parts of the Empire, and thousands of admirers outside the Empire, will rejoice quietly or jubilantly as they prefer, and be glad for the reign of King George V and Queen Mary, whose influence and personality, and service have added lustre, dignity and honor to the Empire and whose desire for justice and a deep seated regard for the general well being of their subjects have endeared them to their people as few men and fewer rulers are.

It is said that on the walls of King George's study in Buckingham Palace hang these five maxims.

Teach me to be obedient to the rules of the game.
Teach me to distinguish between sentiment and sentimentality, aiming the one and despoiling the other.
Teach me neither to prefer nor to receive cheap and undesired praise.
If I am called upon to suffer, let me be like a well bred beast that goes away to suffer in silence.

Teach me to win if I may; if I may not win, then above all teach me to be a good loser.
Kingly Maxims these,
Long Live the King.

THE U F A GOVERNMENT

AND THE PRESS.
The Hanna Herald says— On the whole the press of the province, and particularly the rural newspapers have been very fair to the government. Where credit was due it was generally given. Policies of carrying criticism have been the exception and all this in spite of the most aggressively treatment of the rural papers by the provincial government. Actually the provincial treasurer has bragged about the excessive economies in the way of advertising in Alberta newspapers and at the same time various departments of the government have, over the years, been industriously flooding the weekly newspaper offices with notices of government business which they wanted printed free of charge.

To return to the matter of libel and slander, the average newspaper does not care to flood its columns with lurid details of the trials proceeding in the courts. Possibly the prominence of Mr. Brownlee and Mr. McPherson in the public life of the province was responsible for the daily press going to the extremes it did. But we doubt if the government legislation will achieve any useful purpose. We certainly think it should be thrown out by the next government.

Whatever the present U F A government may do in the way of making it difficult and dangerous for the newspapers to deal with court cases will not exonerate Mr. McPherson and Mr. Brownlee from their actions. Neither will it impress on the people that the government is more concerned about the feelings of these two men than it is about basic democratic principles, a main one of which is the freedom of the press.

Mr. Alberta government has done some very foolish things in its career but its obstinacy in refusing to ditch this legislation is one of the most short sighted of all. Instead of trying to antagonize all the newspapers the government should be seeking to make friends. Right now with the Alberta social credit movement a potent force in the province, the U F A government needs all the friends it can get.

NIGHTINGALE

MESSAGE FROM THE PRIMATE
To the Members of the Church of God in Canada.

Dear Brethren—
We begin the final year of the Restoration Fund Campaign with feelings of profound thankfulness for the wonderful response made by the Church during the first two years.

Now the goal is in sight. But to win that goal and to win it during this, the final year, we need the co-operation of every Deacon, Pastor and individual. I ask that the literature and posters be studied by all our members. Learn from them what has been done and what needs to be done. Pray for this cause every day. God's blessing and guidance have been with us, let us continue to ask Him for His grace and mercy during this final year. This task calls for prayer and action by every member of our Commission, as part of a common effort for the Church of God in Canada.

Let us finish the Task. May the peace of God be with you.
Sincerely yours
